Wisdom could be considered the proper application of true knowledge.

No man is truly educated unless he knows where he came from, why he is here, and where he can expect to go in the next life; unless he can adequately answer the question which Jesus posed: "What think ye of Christ?" The world cannot teach us these things as the Kingdom can.

[Scriptures and the words of prophets] make up what has been referred to as "the Lord's library"...that which would be of greatest importance to you would be the words of the current President of the Church, for his words are directed to our day and our needs.

*John Wesley's mother counseled him:
"Avoid whatever weakens your reason,
impairs the tenderness of your conscience, obscures your sense of God, takes off your relish for spiritual things, . . . increases the authority of the body over the mind."*

Today, with the abundance of books
available, it is the mark of a truly
educated man to know
what not to read.

The fact that a book is old does not necessarily make it of value. The fact that an author wrote one good work does not necessarily mean that all his books are worthy of your time. Do not make your mind a dumping ground for other people's garbage. It is harder to purge the mind of rotten reading than to purge the body of rotten food, and it is more damaging to the soul.
